This will always apply except in certain circumstances where the Company may temporarily refrain from publicly disclosing material information, provided that complete confidentiality is maintained. These exceptional circumstances include:-

- when immediate disclosure would prejudice the ability of the Company to pursue its corporate objectives;

4. CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION

4.1 Application

In restricted circumstances, the Company, in consultation with the Committee, may choose to temporarily withhold disclosure of material information where immediate or premature release of the information would be unduly detrimental to the interests of the Company. Such circumstances will be infrequent and in the necessary course of business, and justified by assessment that potential harm to the Company from immediate disclosure will outweigh potential negative consequences from delaying disclosure. In such cases, the Company will keep such information completely confidential for such limited period of time necessary to ensure that the company is not unduly prejudiced or damaged by its release.

4.2 Responsibilities & Procedures

When material information is being withheld, the Company will take the following precautions to keep the information confidential:-

These responsibilities and procedures also apply during the period of time when announcements or news releases involving material information are being developed, until the information has been released and disseminated to the investing public.

If, at any time or any circumstance, confidential material information is inadvertently divulged in a way that results in selective disclosure to any individual member of the investing public, the Committee will ensure full and immediate, public disclosure and dissemination.

4.3 Unusual Market Activity ("UMA")

One of the indications of leakage of undisclosed material information is where there is unusual trading activity or price movement in the Company's securities. Such unusual trading activity or price movement (if it cannot be explained by any recent announcement or corporate activity) may signify trading by investors who are acting on unpublished information or market rumours. If left unchecked, this may mislead uninformed investors, who may presume that the sudden change in share price and trading volume in Company's securities reflects a corresponding change in its business. In such instances, Bursa Securities may issue a written UMA query to the Company to ascertain the case.

Where there is unusual trading activity or price movement, the Company is expected to –

- undertake due enquiry with the relevant persons such as its Directors, major shareholders and persons familiar with the affairs of the Company to determine the cause; and
- issue a clarifying announcement

This should be undertaken irrespective of whether written UMA query is issued by Bursa Securities.

The Company should ensure that the enquiry or information gathering process is carried out efficiently and the announcement is made on an immediate basis.
